Such a view must lead to a complete humanism. Bergson, Berkeley, and Philosophical Intuition (pp. 430-438): A. C. ARMSTRONG.—An examination of the address entitled "L'Intuition Philosophique" delivered by M. Bergson at the last meeting of the International Congress of Philosophy. Bergson illustrated his thesis that philosophical construction, itself the expression of philosophical intuition, is independent of time and circumstances by reference to the philosophy of Berkeley. Evidence, in opposition to Bergson's view, is adduced from The Commonplace Book to show that much of Berkeley's constructive work is in direct response to contemporary thought and problems. Reviews of Books: Alexius Meinong, Abhandlungen Zur Erkenntnisstheorie und Gegenstandstheorie: WILBUR M. NOTES AND NEWS

THE fourteenth annual meeting of the American Philosophical Association will be held at Chicago, Illinois, on December 28, 29, and 30, 1914, in acceptance of the invitation of the Philosophical Department of the University of Chicago. The Western Philosophical Association will meet in Chicago at the same time, and all sessions will be participated in by both associations. The Political Science Association also convenes at Chicago, and on December 29, in the afternoon, this association will join the two philosophical associations in a discussion of the subject of Democracy and Responsibility. Tentative arrangements have been made for a dinner and the presidential address at the Quadrangle Club on Monday evening, and on Tuesday evening there will be opportunity for dining with the lawyers, and for hearing the presidential address of the Political Science Association by Professor John Bassett Moore. In addition to the joint discussion with the Political Science Association there will be a discussion by the two Philosophical Associations of the subject selected by the Executive Committee of the American Philosophical Association as the main topic at this meeting. This subject is "The Interpretation of Justice, with Special Reference to Problems Forced to the Front by Present Economic, Social, and Political Conditions." Leaders will be selected for this discussion, but it is especially urged that all members of the association give the subject their earnest consideration and offer papers on it if they wish. In addition to the two main discussions there will be the usual opportunity for a number of papers on miscellaneous subjects. Members of the association are requested to send to the Secretary, not later than December 7, the titles of papers which they wish to read and also multiple copies of abstracts in order that discussions may be arranged. Papers are limited to twenty minutes in reading, and abstracts to four hundred words. All titles sent to the Secretary are, together with the abstracts, submitted to the Executive Committee, that it may make up the programme. Membership blanks will be furnished on request, and should be so filled out as to give full information regarding the candidate's qualifications. They should be sent to the Secretary by December 23. In order that various details concerning the meeting may be arranged, members are urged to inform the Secretary if it is their intention to be present. At a later date information will be given concerning trains, hotels, and other accommodations.

(Signed) E. G. SPAULDING,
Secretary.
